

SOCIAL MEDIA COPY FOR HPAI GRAPHICS

GRAPHIC	FACEBOOK/INSTAGRAM	TWITTER	LINK
HEN SAFETY	America's egg farmers work around the clock to protect their hens and farms from bird flu and to ensure the safety of our nation's egg supply. Biosecurity – measures taken on farms to prevent disease – is a priority for farmers every day, not just during a disease outbreak, because egg farmers take their responsibility of caring for their hens seriously and rely on healthy flocks for their livelihoods.	America's #egg farmers work around the clock to protect their #hens from #birdflu and to ensure the safety of our nation's egg supply. Biosecurity – measures taken on farms to prevent disease – is a priority for #farmers every day—not just during a disease outbreak.	AboutBirdFlu.com
FOOD SAFETY	Eggs are safe! @USDA confirms bird flu is not a food safety issue or public health risk, and there is no evidence that it can be transmitted through food. As always, it is important to properly handle and cook eggs or meats to reduce the risk of any food-borne illness.	Eggs are safe! @USDA confirms #birdflu is not a #FoodSafety issue or public health risk, and there is no evidence that it can be transmitted through food. As always, it is important to properly handle and cook #eggs or meats to reduce the risk of any food-borne illness.	EggSafety.org

AMERICAN
EGG BOARD

AFFORDABLE EGGS	Eggs are one of the most affordable and best sources of high-quality protein. Egg farmers are committed to safeguarding our food supply and ensuring that eggs remain readily available.	Eggs are one of the most affordable and best sources of high-quality #protein, and farmers are committed to safeguarding our food supply and ensuring that #eggs remain readily available.	AboutBirdFlu.com
LAYER VS BROILER	Do you know the difference between a broiler chicken and an egg laying hen? Broiler breeds, like Cornish, are raised only for meat, and Laying breeds, like Leghorn, are raised only for egg laying.	Do you know the difference between a broiler chicken and an egg laying hen? Broiler breeds, like Cornish, are raised only for meat, and Laying breeds, like Leghorn, are raised only for egg laying.	UnitedEgg.com

